Join Us! Donate at www.cpintl.org

“Before the CPI trainings, I didn’t know how to care for myself, or my baby. Now I do.”

“If I practiced in a hospital, I could deliver the baby with a cord clamp, plastic sheet, gloves and scissors. I’m more confident doing my job.”

“With my first two children I didn’t have any pre-delivery treatment. I had an infection during delivery and we didn’t have any iron and folic acid supplements, health education, and I deliver the baby with a forceps — if there is one at all.”

Community Partners International is: A leading health organization in Burma — and one of the few international organizations that has invested the time and resources to develop strong local partnerships, strengthening communities and saving lives in Burma.

Help us build a healthy Burma! Donations online at www.gpled.org

In 2012, CPI supported 23 malaria control coordinators in Kachin State; a community health director on the Thailand border; donors, family foundations, international relief organizations — partnering with community organizations, CPI is uniquely positioned to increase access to essential health services — now and into the future.

The key to saving a child under five from preventable causes is immunizations, trauma care and much more in Burma’s underserved towns and remote villages.

Burma. The key to saving a child under five from preventable causes is immunizations, trauma care and much more in Burma’s underserved towns and remote villages.

In 2012 was an extraordinary year for Burma and for CPI, with success measured in impact: — if there is one at all. Free community based care for malaria, as well as for other communicable and non-communicable diseases, is reaching more and more people in Burma. The key to saving a child under five from preventable causes is immunizations, trauma care and much more in Burma’s underserved towns and remote villages.

With our first two children I didn’t have any pre-delivery treatment. I had an infection during delivery and we didn’t have any iron and folic acid supplements, health education, and I deliver the baby with a forceps — if there is one at all.

Community Partners International is one of the few international organizations that has invested the time and resources to develop strong local partnerships, strengthening communities and saving lives in Burma.

In 2012, CPI supported 23 malaria control coordinators in Kachin State; a community health director on the Thailand border; donors, family foundations, international relief organizations — partnering with community organizations, CPI is uniquely positioned to increase access to essential health services — now and into the future.

The key to saving a child under five from preventable causes is immunizations, trauma care and much more in Burma’s underserved towns and remote villages.

Burma. The key to saving a child under five from preventable causes is immunizations, trauma care and much more in Burma’s underserved towns and remote villages.